Europe Criticises Our Prosperity.

Mr. Paul Leroy-Baulien, the French political economist, is exercised over the great prosperity of the United States, and says "it, would not be surprising if within twelve or eighteen months the United States should suffer a violent speculative reaction, if not a thorough collapse."

Such comments as these are continually coming from the French, German and Austrian press and from other countries where great business and financial depression prevails. These have suffered so many and such heavy losses that they cannot understand how it is to "negotiations now pending in possible for America to prosper.
